Dear Professor SUN Hua,

On behalf of UNESCO Beijing Cluster Office, I would like to extend my full solidarity to you and your colleagues in the Center for Excellent Teaching and Learning, Peking University following the outbreak of COVID-19. Please know that our thoughts are with you, your families and communities.

This has been a distressing situation, and I sincerely commend all the efforts and measures that are being taken to protect individuals and communities from the impact of the virus. But it is also heartwarming to see the positive, constructive spirit of internal and international collaboration that this shared challenge has brought about.

UNESCO appreciates the long term collaboration with the Center for Excellent Teaching and Learning, Peking University. We want to reassure you that we fully understand that this exceptional situation affects our normal routines, posing challenges and limitations for us to cope with. You may rest assured that UNESCO stands ready to provide every assistance within its power and fields of competence, to you and your colleagues, and to review work procedures and schedules to both ease burdens and contribute to a return to normalcy at this time.

We pledge to work together with you to overcome this challenge, and to continue supporting your and our communities to the best of our abilities.

Please accept our very best wishes, and every expression of sympathy and support that we can offer.

Yours sincerely,
